

Mark Jacobs

2019 DCTC and Inver Hills Partner of the Year

Mark Jacobs is the director of the Dakota-Scott Workforce Development Board. Mark works with various community resources across the two counties and strides to connect all of those resources to the folks who need them. He has supported his staff in coming to campus to educate students about SNAP benefits. He also provides employer referrals to campus for potential internships or hiring of our students. Mark brings K-12 partnerships and resources that support adult learners together all with the greater good of expanding and educating our workforce in Dakota and Scott counties.

For me personally, Mark was my first (and most important) connection I had to the external campus community when I began working at Inver Hills. He is a connector and a large supporter of our campus. It is always a pleasure to work with Mark because he always has opportunities he wants our students to have and feel supported in.

*Emily Johnson, Director of Career Development
Inver Hills Community College*